WSB MEMBERS
RESIGN POSTSRailroads Threaten New Strike; Ford Closes
Over Weekend

By United Press

Industry members of President Truman's wage stabilization board resigned their jobs, effective today, while in other administration quarters U. S. officials sought to end tie-ups in the film, power, transit and shipping industries and avert a western railroad strike.

The WSB members, A. Colman Barrett and Earl N. Cannon, submitted their resignations in a letter to Mr. Truman in which they said that it had become apparent that wage controls were no longer feasible.

The administration today was reported to be considering the question of an all-public member board to replace the tri-partite structure. At present, the board is composed of public, labor and industry representatives.

Some observers believe the action presaged an escalation of the WSB and a pay controls which, in turn, could be used by labor unions to derailing of wage contracts.

COLD WEATHER
SLATED TO HIT
HERE FRIDAY

By United Press

Most Midwesterners enjoyed mild temperatures today, but they'll be firing up their basement furnaces tomorrow.

A cold snap is on the way, the weather bureau said. It will cover Iowa and Minnesota today, hit the Ohio valley by Friday and spread into New England Saturday.

Widespread and heavy frost will cover Iowa, Minnesota and most of Wisconsin tomorrow morning and reach most of the north central states Saturday morning, the weather bureau said.

Scattered snow fell on Wyoming and Colorado today. Temperatures dropped to 20 above at Butte, Mont., during the night. It was seasonal in the Pacific states. A light rain fell on Middle Atlantic states, gradually spreading northward. It was warm in most southern states.

MILK GOAL HIGHER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The agriculture department has set a 1947 milk production goal of 120,000,000,000 pounds, it was learned today. This would be about 1,000,000,000 pounds more than this year's actual production.

Communists Called Traitors

IN NEW REPORTU. S. Urged To Make Public
Information About
Red Activities

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The American Communist party was accused today of sedition and treason as an agent of a foreign power.

The accusation was made by the United States Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber said the least the United States could do in self-protection against the Communist party would be to require publicity for membership lists and its sources of income.

Six men composed the committee which produced for the Chamber a pamphlet entitled: Communist Infiltration in the United States. They were Francis P. Matthews, lawyer, Omaha, Neb.; Thomas C. Boushall, banker, Richmond, Va.; Carlyle Fraser, manufacturer, Atlanta, Ga.; Fred L. Conklin, insurance, Bismarck, N. D.; Richard K. Lane, public utilities, Tulsa, Okla.; and Emerson P. Schmidt, director of the Chamber's economic research department.

The chamber's report said that "sedition and treason" accurately describe activities of the American Communist party. But the report states that Communist propaganda is powerfully circulated in the United States through a combination of party front organizations and infiltration tactics. It named the following organizations as among Communist fronts:

American Youth for Democracy, National Negro Congress, International Workers Order, the win-the-peace organization established here last Spring with the support of a score of congressmen, and the Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions. Harold L. Ickes, former secretary of the interior, is executive chairman of the latter organization. It is not suggested that he is a Communist.

The report explains that front organizations usually are set up to propagandize some specific issue.

"When the issue is picked and the title decided," the report continues, "The case is presented dramatically to some 'innocent,' who is both prominent and willing to have his name used for 'good' cause. His name is used as bait to attract others, until a rather impressive list is obtained. Com-

FERGUSON SAYS
SOLONS SHOULD HEAR REP. MAY

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—Sen. Homer Ferguson, R. Mich., said today he felt the senate was investigating committee should continue its efforts to question Rep. Andrew J. May, D. Ky., so long as they did not interfere with a current war profits grand jury inquiry.

The committee, of which Ferguson is a member, has sought for months to query May formally on his dealings with the Garsson munitions combine. Grand jury action in a case involving Garsson started today in Washington.

May's scheduled appearance before the senate committee last Summer was delayed when the Kentucky congressman suffered a heart attack.

Ferguson said that if May is able to testify during the grand jury proceedings he also should be called up before the war investigating committee.

Changes Made In Water
Personnel; Survey Due

Assistance of the Pickaway county sheriff's department was needed to enable two newly employed engineers to begin duties at the Circleville waterworks Wednesday night.

On the heels of this incident it was announced Thursday by John Mader, chairman of the municipal utilities commission, that substantial repairs and improvements to the city's water system are to be made in order to provide Circleville residents with better service.

Mader said that Howard Young and his brother, Mason Young, engineers at the waterworks, have been "succeeded" by two newly engaged licensed engineers, Hildeburn Martin and William Blaney. They are Circleville men.

Although Mader declined to discuss the events leading up to the calling of the sheriff's department to enable Martin and Blaney to take over the water plant Wednesday night, Sheriff Charles Radcliff said that Mader telephoned his office and that Deputy Carl Radcliff was dispatched to the scene.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon said he understood the Young brothers were "discharged" after they had threatened to resign unless they received a substantial salary increase. The two men had worked for Ohio Water Service company, former owners of the city's water service, which was purchased last July by the municipality.

Mader announced that the municipal utilities commission has engaged the Columbus sanitary engineering firm of Burgess and Niple to make "an overall survey of the waterworks plant" in order that the commission may map a long-range plan for necessary repairs and improvements to the waterworks system.

"The improvements," Mader explained, "will include a water softening plant, a new pumping system, and a more adequate water supply."

He said that the survey will determine the practicability of whether the water plant should remain at its present site or be relocated.

MEAT SHORTAGE
BEING STUDIED
BY DEMOCRATSDrastic Changes In Present
Setup May Be Made
To Ease Problem

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—President Truman's political advisers, alarmed at mounting public resentment over shortages, groped desperately today for some way to ease the meat famine without scuttling price control.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross indicated Mr. Truman might have something to say on the subject at his news conference at 4 p. m. EST. But Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson said he doubted the President would have any plan ready.

Anderson was among a group of top-ranking administration officials who met at the White House yesterday for more than two-and-a-half hours to discuss the problem. Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan also was present.

It was the third special meeting on the meat situation within a week and underscored the administration's mounting concern over the possible effects of the shortages on the Democrats' chances of keeping control of congress in the November elections.

It was pointed out to Anderson that reports were circulating that price controls on meat might be lifted in an effort to get some meat on the market by election.

"That would be an awfully foolish thing," he replied.

Anderson's statement indicated the administration still is seeking some other way out of its dilemma. Instead of removing controls, for instance, present ceilings might be increased or subsidy payments boosted in an effort to lure cattle off the ranges.

The administration also might gamble that it could increase supplies through a channeling program which would force federal slaughterers to give larger cities their historic share of meats.

Imports from Canada and Argentina also are possibilities. Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton's presence at the White House meeting led to a belief that this was discussed. The belief was further bolstered by the announcement that the Argentine ambassador would confer with Anderson today. Only canned meat from the Argentine can be sent here under present import regulations.

Whatever solution the administration tries, an informed official said it would not call for a special session of congress.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments:

FARMERS REAP DOLLAR HARVEST
DURING HOLIDAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Farmers reaped one of their biggest dollar harvests in history when price controls were off in July and August, the agriculture department reported today.

It said cash receipts from farm marketings and government payments during the two-month period totaled about $4,440,000,000, including $1,317,000,000 for meat animals.

Dairy products brought $788,000,000, poultry and eggs $402,000,000, food grains $599,000,000, feed crops $307,000,000, cotton $84,000,000 and oil crops $59,000,000.

Other big revenue producers were tobacco $200,000,000, vegetables $361,000,000, and fruits and nuts $315,000,000.

The total during the two months pushed farm income for the first nine months of the year up to about $15,100,000,000 or six per cent more than during the corresponding period last year.

Bevin Hits
Soviet Stand
On Danube

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Great Britain accused Russia today of undertaking "deliberately discriminatory action" against wartime allies in trying to exclude the western powers from access to the Danube river.

Bevin said during debate on the Romanian peace treaty that Soviet policy in trying to restrict the use of the Danube to countries along its banks "gives rise to a good deal of suspicion as to the designs of the Soviet Union in this part of the world."

He charged the Soviets with deliberately setting up a barrier between the East and the West along the Danube. And he forthrightly challenged V. M. Molotov of Russia to prove his goodwill voiced yesterday when he deplored the division of the East and the West.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., opened the Romanian debate with a demand for a free Danube and the application of Atlantic charter trade principles in the Balkans.

Bevin, supporting the same theme, said when he spoke later: "If we are to remove the division between the East and the West, which was here referred to as an absurdity (by Molotov), here is a great chance. We are anxious to assist in Romanian recovery. The task of rehabilitating Europe is made infinitely more difficult so long as there is a barrier between the West and the East on the Danube area."

After the first flurry of confused reports, U. S. Army Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaden, Germany, confirmed that all flights of Army transport planes and commercial air lines over Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Romania were ordered cancelled Wednesday afternoon.

Air force officials at Wiesbaden said their orders came from Gen. Joseph T. McNamery, commander of American forces in Europe, and they did not know why the orders were issued.

The time limits of the order were not clarified at once. A Prague announcement by the foreign ministry said the ban ran through Oct. 14. An air attaché at the U. S. embassy in London said he understood the ban was temporary.

European sources usually willing and able to speculate at the drop of a rumor caught off guard by the sudden announcement and had little idea what might have prompted the Soviet action.

It followed by less than a week another flurry over Anglo-American air activity over the Balkans. A British plane was forced down and detained for a day. The Russians and Yugoslavs have complained repeatedly of the alleged violation of territory by Anglo-American planes. On Aug. 9 and 19 two U. S. transport planes were forced down by the Yugoslavs, and in the latter case five American crewmen were killed.

Reports from Prague, the first point within the Soviet sphere to comment on the aerial ban, suggested that Czechoslovakia was none too well pleased with her part of it. They said the Russian (Continued on Page Two)

Zero Locker company at Asheville had 320 pounds of meat on hand Oct. 6, but Circleville cold storage warehouses had no meat on that date, according to the Ohio Agriculture Department which Thursday announced a list of 48 cold storage warehouses in Ohio that reported supplies on hand as of Oct. 6. The announcement said that some of the state's 90 such plants made no report because they had no meat.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche had asked the department early this week to make a thorough investigation of the meat storage situation. The Asheville locker concern also reported having had 260 pounds on hand on July 6.

No reports were received from Pickaway county other than that from Asheville.

Steps were being taken Thursday by Police Chief William F. McCrady to prevent the operation of a "bookie" on the second floor of a downtown building.

The police chief telephoned one of the alleged promoters of the gambling place and warned him that police will "raid the place every day."

Chief McCrady disclosed that he would also notify the state department of liquor control.

"This place is not going to operate—and I mean it," the police chief said.

He said he would also notify the owner of the building.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Russia sealed off a broad stretch of the Balkans and Czechoslovakia against foreign air traffic today in a sudden and mysterious action lacking any immediate explanation.

An unheralded burst of reports from key points on the continent disclosed only after the Soviet air ban was in effect that the Red army had forbidden military or commercial flights over Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Romania, as of yesterday.

A Pan American Airways Clipper turned back from Vienna, cancelling its scheduled flight on to Prague. The company announced it was terminating its transatlantic flights at Brussels until the orders shutting off the air lanes over Soviet-dominated areas was clarified.

After the first flurry of confused reports, U. S. Army Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaden, Germany, confirmed that all flights of Army transport planes and commercial air lines over Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Romania were ordered cancelled Wednesday afternoon.

general staffs in Budapest and Vienna issued the orders.

Observing that the Czech general staff and transport ministry were regarded in Prague as the only offices competent to regulate air traffic over Czechoslovakia, the reports quoted those offices as saying they knew nothing about it.

Even the Czech air line, which operates between Prague and Belgrade four times a week, reported that it had not been advised officially of the Soviet prohibition.

A further air of mystery was added to the situation by the Prague disclosure that the matter was not being publicized in that country. Authorities said they had statements prepared for publication as soon as necessary, apparently the same ones already released for foreign publication.

U. S. Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt said in Prague that he knew nothing official about the cancellations except that the Pan American flight to Vienna was cancelled for the time being.

He said his personal plane was sent to Germany on his instructions to have an engine overhauled, and he was told by telephone that it would be ready to return to Prague next week.

"I am sure it will be cleared up in a short time," Steinhardt said.

American officials in the four-power air directorate of the Allied control authority at Berlin professed to be baffled by the announcement.

The air safety center, which checks all flights in and out of Berlin, said all air operations in Germany and eastward to Poland and Moscow were operating "normally and according to schedule."

A high officer in the air directorate said the report was "interesting," but it was the first he had heard of such restrictions and he could offer no explanation. He said the Russians had not informed the four-power air directorate of any such action "as far as I know."

A plane carrying Lt. Gen. Walter B. Smith, U. S. ambassador to Russia; Robert Murphy, political adviser to the American military government in Germany; and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Lucius D. Clay, wife of the deputy military governor, arrived at Tempelhof airport from Moscow on schedule this afternoon.

M. S. Handler, United Press correspondent, was aboard the plane. He said the flight was without incident, and he knew of no reason for the Russian action.

Mader said the survey by the Columbus engineering firm is scheduled to begin early next week and that it is expected to be completed in two or three weeks. He did not disclose the cost of the survey or the estimated costs of the projected repairs and improvements.

Other members of the utilities commission are Dr. Ned B. Griner and Walter Stambaugh.

BATAAN DEATH MARCH SURVIVOR SAID BIGAMIST

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 10—A 26-year-old Richman, N. H., survivor of the Bataan death march and 3½ years as a slave laborer in Japanese mines was held in jail today after pleading guilty to bigamy charges.

Ernest Packard, former medical corps sergeant, was brought into court yesterday only one day after returning from his honeymoon with Dorothy Schmidt of Scranton.

His first wife, the former Catherine Renner whom he married in the Philippines on Oct. 16, 1941, told Judge T. Linus Hoban that Packard lived with her in New York after being liberated and that a child was born to her.

She told the jurist that she didn't want her husband sent to prison and that she would accept a financial settlement. Catherine, described as a former member of the Philippine underground, was brought to the U. S. as a war bride while Packard was a prisoner of the Japanese.

Packard, listed by the veterans administration as "totally disabled" testified that practically "every bone in my body except my neck was broken by the Japs." He admitted marrying the Scranton girl last Sept. 28.

munists, not generally known as such, do the work for such groups and occupy the active, in contrast to the honorary offices. They determine the policies and direct the front in accord with party aims."

Communists have infiltrated the American labor movement with more success within the CIO than the AFL, the report said. It charged that one third of the voting strength of the CIO executive committee was Communist-controlled. It estimated die-hard anti-Communists had a one-fifth Communist representation. Among the remainder, the report said, there are enough fellow travelers to bring Communist strength to a majority on complex and obscure issues such as foreign policy.

President Philip Murray of the CIO was described as helpless and "lame accepting resolution after resolution which show remarkable similarity to the Communist party line." Acknowledging that neither Murray nor the late Sidney Hillman was a Communist, the pamphlet has this comment on the CIO's political action committee:

"Two of their top advisers are Communists, taking direct and frequent orders on PAC from the very top levels of the Communist party."

The pamphlet says American Communists have infiltrated with some success into the general press, radio, book and magazine publishing, motion pictures and lecture fields. It suggests that some Hollywood stars are suckers for the red party line and says the Screen Writers Guild and the Radio Writers Guild are Communist-dominated.

"The only conclusion from the facts," the report says, "is that the Communist party is an important and growing influence in our national life. It is using its influence exclusively in the interests of the Soviet Union. It opposes political democracy and free enterprise and operates with surprising effectiveness against both."

DOUBLE MILK PRODUCTION IS SEEN BY KRAFT

COLUMBUS, Oct. 10—President John H. Kraft of the Kraft Foods company, told junior dairymen of the All-American Jersey show here last night that a specific program by American dairy farmers could double milk production in the next 15 years.

Kraft said the program would help solve the American and world-wide food supply problem.

The food problem has important social aspects, Kraft added, "because here lies the discontent, misery and discord that makes for war."

Kraft listed five basic suggestions by which dairymen could help meet national and world needs.

"Raise the national average of 180 pounds of butterfat per cow per year, strive for more even production throughout the year, take care of the land you farm, make use of all agencies that can help you and use better tools for the job."

TRUCKER FINED

Francis X. Hagy, trucker, was fined $25 and costs, Wednesday night, by Mayor Ben H. Gordon, on charges of hauling from New Jersey to Circleville without possessing an Ohio utilities permit. Hagy had been taken into custody by Dudley Crider, state utilities officer. Hagy paid the fine and was released.

BILLION DOLLAR PLANT SOUGHT BY AIR FORCES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—The Army Air Forces will push plans for a billion dollar aircraft engineering development center in the next session of congress now that it has been assigned control of the Army's guided missile development.

Army sources said the decision assured the AAF of a dominant role in the defense of the nation, because of the new importance of guided missiles.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, head of AAF research and development, took a prominent role in the AAF's battle with the ordnance department for control of guided missiles. He has outlined the plans for the new development center, to supplant Wright Field, Ohio.

The AAF hopes to get the first appropriation for the new center through the next session of congress. Congress also must select a site for the development.

RADAR REPORTS ON METEORS TO U. S. SCIENTISTS

By PAUL F. ELLIS

United Press Science Writer

Scientists in astronomy hailed radar today as a potential "watch-dog" for pilots flying space ships to the moon and other new worlds in the universe—if that day ever comes.

Radar proved last night and early today that it can detect flying meteors, shooting across the sky at many miles away from the earth.

The tests were made during the best celestial show of the century for the northern part of the western hemisphere. The show was the shooting meteors or "stars" coming out of the train of the Giacobini-Zinner which passed within 132,000 miles of the earth.

Overcast skies prevented visible observation of the meteor shower in many sections of the country, but that didn't stop radar.

It penetrated the heavy clouds, bounced against the shooting stars and sent back echoes which were recorded on screens at two stations—one at Sterling, Va., and the other at White Sands, N. M.

MEAT SHORTAGE BEING STUDIED BY DEMOCRATS

sources said the United States does not owe Britain 50,000,000 pounds of meat as charged by British good minister John Strachey. They said this was a deficit from 1945 which this country was not "firmly bound to supply."

2. The OPA cattle producers industry advisory committee scheduled a meeting for Oct. 17 to draw up a petition for livestock decontrol. They contend near-record numbers of livestock on the ranges make controls unnecessary.

3. Democratic chairman Hannegan met this morning with representatives of the meat packers union (CIO) to discuss the situation.

4. OPA sources said calf prices soon will be hiked one cent a pound at the packer level which probably would boost retail veal prices about 1½ cents. Calf prices only recently were decreased from 20.25 to 18 cents a pound.

Besides Anderson, Hannegan and Clayton those present at yesterday's White House meeting on meat included Reconversion Director John R. Steelman, Price Chief Paul Porter, and Clark Clifford, special counsel to the President.

RADIO STOCKS SOLD AT LOSS BY GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—The government will sell more than $1,000,000,000 in surplus war communications equipment in the next year but an official predicted today it won't recover much more than its sales costs.

George H. Moriarty, director of the war assets administration's electronics division, told reporters electronics division, told reporters sales so far has been virtually eaten up in expenses.

He said the story will be much the same when the agency finally closes out its electronics stocks—expected to total $1,200,000,000 in acquisition cost—around the end of 1947.

Most of the war surplus radar, radio and other communications devices are highly specialized and, for commercial purposes, wastefully constructed, Moriarty pointed out.

SOD WATERWAYS HALT EROSION ON FARM LAND

ACP Will Help Pickaway
County Farmers Build
Soil Retainers

Grass waterways can be used by Pickaway county farmers to close dangerous ditches which result when excess water seeks an outlet, says Chairman John Boggs of the agricultural conservation committee.

Now is a good time of year to rebuild drainage areas and grow a permanent grass cover on them, he points out. Such cover controls erosion and also prevents destruction of valuable crops.

Good grass waterways also help prevent upset and damage to farm equipment, as well as injury to the operator. It is sometimes dangerous to cross or turn at such ditches.

Nine acres of sod waterways are needed to control gully and ditch erosion in the county, according to a survey made last year by representatives of farm organizations.

Under the 1944 and 1945 agricultural conservation programs (ACP), three acres of waterways were given grass cover by county farmers.

The ACP will share with farmers the cost of putting in protected waterways. Farmers who want to include this practice with others in their 1946 farm plan should call on the county office at Circleville.

ASHVILLE

Woman's Civic Club of Ashville held a very interesting meeting in the club room Thursday evening. Each member answered roll call by naming a child's book. Mrs. Stanley Bowers read an appropriate and educational paper on "What's New in Children's Books". Mrs. Bowers named the Reading Circle books used in the local school and showed several of these books to the club. Mrs. Roland Fetheringham, president of the club, asked all members to attend the Southeast district conference meeting to be held in Lancaster on October 15.

Ellis Cline, David Dresbach, and Chester Peters escaped injury early Saturday morning when the automobile, driven by Cline, overturned near the L. M. Cummins farm. Defective steering gear was blamed for the accident. The car was badly damaged.

Ashville seniors, accompanied by the Rev. and Mrs. H. D. Fudge, spent Tuesday in Columbus where the annual class pictures were taken and several places of interest in Columbus were visited.

C. D. Kraft, David Kraft, S. L. Smith, Edwin Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hodges, and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Runkle were among local folk who attended the Bob Feller all-star game in Columbus Monday evening.

G. A. Hook was painfully injured at the ball park Sunday when a bat slipped from the grasp of Noon, Ashville right fielder, and struck Mr. Hook in the face. While five stitches were required to close the wound, Mr. Hook was able to work at his place of business Monday.

Mrs. Harry Sark, who underwent surgery at White Cross hospital Friday for the removal of several nose tumors, was returned to her home Tuesday.

Mrs. Charles Holcomb is seriously ill at the Cain's Nursing Home on Bryden Road, Columbus.

Miss Nellie Warner has been seriously ill for several weeks at her home on Powell street.

Ashville Bowling Alley, owned by Wade Canter and Bill Fortner and operated by Ellis Cline, opened Monday evening in Plum's Hall.

The Ashville village board of education met Tuesday evening with routine business occupying most of the time. Because of increased school costs the board is compelled to ask for public support of a 3-mill operating levy at the November election.

DREAMBOAT CREW GETS OFFICIAL WELCOME IN CAIRO

COL. C. S. IRVINE, left, of St. Paul, Neb., commander of the epochal flight by the U. S. According to Irvine, the most important discovery on the trip was the fact the magnetic pole was found to be 200 miles further north than Polar maps show. This is a radiophoto. FARMERS MAY PLAN NOW FOR BETTER HOGS

COLUMBUS, Special.—Now is the time for farmers to begin plans for next season's stepped-up pork production, by selecting high-efficiency breeding stock that will assure a heavy volume of spring pigs, livestock authorities urged in a report issued here today.

"With the need for much higher production, farmers cannot afford this year to trifle with inferior or scrub breeding stock," states today's report by the American Foundation for Animal Health. "Producing herds should be culled now, to eliminate shy-breeding brood sows, and both sows and boars which produce slow-gaining, hard-feeding pigs."

"Farmers who want to assure themselves of a good pig crop would do well to have their breeding stock tested for brucellosis. This disease has been spreading in recent years, causing sows to lose their pigs, or to produce weak, sickly litters that may survive only a few days after farrowing. If animals are blood-tested, however, owners should bear in mind that brucellosis testing is valuable on a herd basis, but of little use on an individual hog basis. New breeding stock is not introduced without the precaution of a blood test."

Foundation authorities also urged swine raisers to clean up hog houses before cold weather. Steps suggested include burning of contaminated bedding, thorough disinfection, checking of all hogs for mange, and treatment of the animals if mange exists. Many winter disease problems can be avoided by proper cleanup measures now, the report states.

25,000 OHIOANS SIGN UP FOR REGULAR ARMY

Emphasizing that voluntary Army enlistments the past year have broken every record, in peace and war, Col. Dayton stated that after the millionth man has joined the Regular Army, replacements must be obtained at the rate of 35,000 a month in order to assure

CZECHS ERASE NAZI PAST

PRAGUE—Determined to eradicate all reminders of the Nazi-dominated past, the ministry of posts has ordered post offices to return to the sender any letter or parcel from abroad addressed to "Protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia," "Sudetenland" or "Tschechei" and any mail addressed to Germany for Czech towns.

the Army the 1,070,000 men it needs on July 1, 1947.

Col. Dayton expressed pride in the number of enlistments from Ohio and explained that the Regular Army is an army of technicians, men who are intelligent, skilled, and aware of the vital importance of the job they do.

"With the new pay rates in effect, the Army offers a job in many cases superior to the average civilian job today. The educational opportunities, both while in service and after the enlistment period is completed, as well as the excellent retirement plan available after 20 or 30 years service, make the Regular Army a more worthy career than ever before," Col. Dayton concluded.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Are Returning Veterans "Different"?

During the war you heard a lot about how hard it was going to be for returning veterans to get adjusted to civilian life... how they'd be "different."

Well, plenty of them have returned to our town, and a finer, steadier bunch you couldn't ask for. Most of them are back at the same jobs... going with the same nice home-town girls (getting married, some of them, and setting up families)... renewing the same old friendships.

Even their amusements are the same. Nothing more exciting than fishing Seward's creek or pitching horseshoes... enjoying an outdoor barbecue with friendly wholesome beer and pleasant talk.

If they've changed at all it's in the direction of maturity and tolerance... tolerance for everything except dictators, and those who would destroy our democratic principles of live and let live. And from where I sit, that's another reason to be proud of them.

LIFE INSURANCE CHIEF URGES U. S. REFINANCING

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—A spokesman for the nation's life insurance firms has appealed to the government to refinance part of the public debt and pay slightly higher carrying charges on it as the "unavoidable" price of controlling inflation.

Claris Adams, retiring president of the American Life convention, delivered the appeal before 700 insurance executives attending the convention's 41st annual meeting. Adams is president of the Ohio State Life Insurance company, Columbus, O.

The nation cannot control inflation without paying a higher interest rate on its public debt, Adams said. The problem of inflation, he said, is "inextricably interwoven with a cheap money policy" inaugurated by the treasury to finance war loans cheaply.

He called upon the government to allow non-inflationary bond holders to take over short-term bonds held by banks. Bank holders of war bonds, he said, had "monetized a huge section of the public debt and thus created an enormous expansion in the supply of money and credit."

"It was cheap money," Adams said. "It was designed to be cheap money in order that the treasury could borrow cheaply. Perhaps the policy was wise, perhaps it was necessary, but the price was inflation."

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Must be a pretty smart buy!

We know how great is the desire for new automobiles—how urgent the need for them in many cases.

And we're aware that nearly every make of car these days can point to a long waiting list of folks who have placed their orders.

But when a car hops instantly into "most wanted" position as this Buick did—

When week after week new orders out-pace stepped-up factory production—

Then we figure there must be something far beyond the expected in the car itself.

Something even bigger than standout style of the season—a big Fireball straight-eight power plant—the husky, roomy size of two fine-made tons.

What is it? Well, have you handled one of these cars yourself? Have you noticed the happy, almost-starry-eyed look of those who've got theirs?

Fact is—1946 Buick owners are our best salesmen, and the factory is working with might and main to keep up with the effects of their enthusiasm.

If your order isn't in, you can place it now, for delivery at OPA prices, with or without a car to trade in (though of course we need to get good cars for the used-car buyers on our waiting list).

NEW CARS

HARDLY less joyful than the time of the singing of birds in the spring is the advent of new automobiles—especially when these glad events have been suspended several years. Untold thousands of old cars have gone the way of all rubbish, and the first showing of new models, even though they are not yet on the market, ushers in an era destined to sweep the jalopies aside and make way for a new order in general. Even women's dress styles lose interest in the presence of such productions, and observant critics are described as "lost in a fog of words," with a debating society around every corner.

It is a good thing to provide such a diversion. One eloquent critic observes that "all groups are so busy arguing about their various viewpoints that we fail to see that all of us, capital and labor and management and consumers and government, are for a little while in the same boat, and going approximately in the same direction." And that is a blessed relief. But why say "boat"? We thought it was new cars that were agitating the public mind and driving off in dozens of diverse directions.

BASEBALL OVERSEAS

WILLIAM F. McDermott, writing from Berlin, says that American soldiers are teaching German children and young people to play baseball. This sports program has official sanction, and the men are given four hours off a week to coach the juvenile teams.

There could be no simpler nor more effective way to inculcate American ideals of sportsmanship and fair play than by a program of this sort. Under Hitler, the children were early inoculated with the poison of hatred, and were taught from the beginning the value of brute force in imposing their ideas upon their so-called inferiors in the rest of the world.

If the new generation can be taught the constructive value of democratic ideals through the medium of clean sports, their energies may be turned in the right direction. McDermott says that those in charge of the program believe that it is responsible for the recent decrease in juvenile delinquency in Berlin. In part, at least, this is probably true.

It is to be hoped that the meat shortage will not divert popular attention from really important topics like the world series.

If the old car comes to the end of its days as a conveyance, it might be possible to rent it out as a home.

He that taketh up the bomb shall perish by the bomb.

No, the Russians are not stubborn. They just know they're right about everything.

Inside WASHINGTON

Jim Farley May Return
To Active Political Role

Wallace Cabinet Ouster
Likely to Lure Him Back

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Washington political observers are speculating that the ouster of Henry A. Wallace from the Truman cabinet and the president's backing of Secretary of State Byrnes in the recent foreign policy controversy may bring former Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley back into the official Democratic "family."

That possibility was raised by Farley's presence in Paris at the height of the Wallace-Byrnes cabinet crisis. Reports that Farley had a prominent hand in bringing the Democratic row to a conclusion with Wallace's dismissal were given little credence in Washington. But politicians nevertheless believed that Mr. Truman's 100 per cent support of Byrnes—a conservative like Farley—may have been enough to pave the way for "Big Jim" to resume an active political role.

Farley broke with the late President Roosevelt in 1940 over the third term issue. Now that the last of the original New Deal cabinet officers is gone, some persons believe Farley may be ready to lend his strength to the Democratic cause on a national scale.

Farley has maintained his thousands of party contacts throughout the country while serving as a traveling executive for a soft drink concern. He is credited with knowing more Democratic local leaders and workers in his time than anyone else in the party.

His active aid in the closely-fought congressional elections this year—and in the presidential battle ahead in 1948—conceivably have a decisive effect. What he will do is still Farley's secret.

OFFICIALS OF THE UNITED STATES and some of the Latin-

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—The dominating attitude of the Russians at Paris started easing down immediately after Molotov's first trip to Moscow. Earlier the Soviet foreign minister had treated State Secretary Byrnes, in their private conferences, as if the American position was practically inconsequential. Molotov never seriously considered the Byrnes viewpoint and acted as if perhaps the American state secretary did not even represent American opinion. Seeing this, Mr. Byrnes first sent for Senators Vandenberg and Connally to back him up and present a stronger appearance of American political unity on policy to the 21 nations. Thus an extremely sensitive personal situation arose between Messrs. Molotov and Byrnes, with Molotov trying to bulldoze the smaller nations into acceptance of the largely Russian-made peace treaties by leaving them considerably in doubt as to Byrnes' power and status. It was in the midst of this sensitized condition that Henry Wallace, former commerce secretary, injected himself into foreign policy, and not on the side of Byrnes.

Now it may be told Byrnes was so angry at this attempt to undermine him at home when the matter of his prestige had become the subject of the whole Russian underground campaign at the conference, he did not even telephone President Truman to voice his protest. He confined himself even more fastidiously to American circles and let a few newsmen know the situation. The subsequent decision of Mr. Truman to back Byrnes to the limit saved the policy of American resistance to Russian encroachments from a complete breakdown.

Since then Molotov has been more polite. In general Byrnes has remained away from the committee meetings, although the Russians have not. The Reds, however, have seemed to change around to the position of trying to convince the 21 smaller nations that they should adhere and give approval to the Russian position. No longer is roughshod talk used to steamroller the small nations, but as Vice Foreign Commissar Vishinsky told the Italian commission the other day, Russia was ready to admit she did not interpret world events as other nations did, indicating a hope for temperance in international discussions against war, maintaining a new Stalin position against expectations of war and predicting—of all things—"a period of comprehension." In all this Byrnes has kept pretty much to his rooms.

In view of this personal, inner, strained condition of affairs, an objective analyst must conclude Russia has definitely changed her line, but not yet conclusively. In place of rough talk, threats and challenges, she seems to be substituting her old policy of boring from within. Her language has changed, but not her objectives.

This is a common Communist technique, the Marxian principle always allowing its leadership to deviate in tactics from the extremes of aggression to soft appeasement without alteration of ultimate revolutionary intent. Thus Generalissimo (Byrnes always calls him that) Stalin, may tell a secondary London newspaper one day he expects no war and then the next day threaten Turkey belligerently for the Dardanelles as if war were imminent.

American countries are growing increasingly unhappy over political developments south of the Rio Grande since the war ended. They fear that the entire fabric developed under the late President Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy and made more binding by the common dangers of hostility may be falling apart under the stresses of the peace.

State department experts avoid voicing their apprehension in public utterances but some of them privately evince concern. In public they note that more free elections have been held in South American countries than at any time in history, many of them—as in Brazil and Argentina—for the first time in years.

It is the apparent development of a cleavage between nationalistic and communistic ideologies. Between the two, democracy of the United States type apparently is being squeezed out. The experts feel that something needs to be done to restore the democratic ideal but they can't find out what is to be done. One Latin-American authority just returned from a tour of the south-of-the-border countries claims that United States prestige has never been lower than now.

The Communists, as in most countries, are far better organized than any others save totalitarian regimes, such as Argentina. As far as can be determined, they have no contact with the Soviet diplomatic service, now the most impressive of any in the Latin-American lands.

However, Communist policy follows closely the Soviet line, being received long-range by radio transmission. The United States plans to try to remedy the situation as soon as the European peace is settled, but that seems remote.

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT investigating committees in Congress is scheduled to go out of existence this year because of a lack of funds with which to continue its work.

Senator Kilgore (D) of West Virginia has announced that his Senate military affairs subcommittee on war mobilization will close its doors Dec. 31 because of upper chamber opposition.

Kilgore himself now has a more important job—that of chairman of the Senate war investigating committee, a post in which he follows President Truman and Senator James Mead (D) of New York.

DIET AND HEALTH

New Diet Helpful for Ulcer

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

SOMETHING new has been added to the treatment of stomach ulcer. First reports indicate that it may well make all the difference between a slow, long-delayed healing, and a short, three-weeks cure.

The something new is a high protein diet, using predigested protein plus rest in bed.

According to Dr. Vincent J. Vinci and his co-workers of Connecticut, who tried out this new, double-barreled treatment on 30 patients, its results are far superior to the ordinary type of treatment.

Painful Disorder

Now, stomach ulcer is a very painful disorder. Pain usually comes on one to three hours after meals and is sometimes accompanied by sickness to the stomach and vomiting. It is made worse by the taking of protein-rich foods, such as meat, and is relieved by the taking of alkaline substances, such as soda, and the eating of soft foods.

The usual treatment for ulcer is based on these facts. It consists in the use of alkaline substances to lessen the acidity of the stomach, preparations to control excessive secretion of stomach juices, and a diet made up of milk, cream and soft cereals. Freedom from worry, in so far as possible, is also stressed.

Low In Calories

Not only are proteins lacking in the usual ulcer diet, but the diet is also low in calories. Under these circumstances it is only natural that Dr. Vinci should find the ulcer patient underweight, lacking in energy, and showing signs of protein starvation.

Since ulcer patients cannot tolerate the ordinary protein foods, Dr. Vinci tried treatment with a special food rich in predigested protein, that is, protein which had been acted on by digestive substances. Thus the protein could be absorbed directly and the ulcerated stomach spared its usual task of preparing the protein for the body's use.

The diet contained also, sugar, milk, cream, cereal, and soft-boiled eggs, in addition to the predigested protein food. Vitamin preparations were given separately. No other medication was employed, but the patient was kept at almost complete rest in bed.

With this treatment, it was found that pain relief was quickly produced. The patient's nutrition was rapidly improved and he felt better. Practically all the patients showed a gain in weight. After about three weeks of treatment, the symptoms disappeared completely and X-rays showed that the ulcer had healed.

A number of the patients had the type of ulcer which required operation but the high protein feeding was employed prior to operation and brought about improvement so that the patients were better able to withstand the operative procedure.

Here, once again, we have a further demonstration of the value of protein, and see that it is of immense importance not only in health but in disease. Apparently, if the body is supplied with the protein it needs, it can make its own speedy repair of diseased tissue.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

ABBY SMILED at Mrs. Heddon. "You must tell me when my time's up," she said.

Mrs. Heddon thought, Well, bless you, you're not more than 20 and the prettiest thing I ever saw. Aloud she said, "Shall we say half an hour, Mrs. Lambert? Your father's doing fine. But he mustn't get overtired."

The door closed and Wallace said, "You look a little puzzled."

"It's nothing," she said. "I'm so glad you weren't badly hurt." She was. She had suffered authentically between reading Barry's note and hearing his voice on the telephone. She could not rationalize it. It was plain biology, probably. She had once loved her father, she had been hurt by him, she had feared him, and even bitterly disliked him. She had more recently schooled herself to indifference, but when she had learned that he had been injured her blood spoke to her in a voice she could not ignore, the voice of compassion.

"I'm tough," he said, as he had said to Barry. "Valentine was quite remarkable, really. She kept her head. It was not her fault."

"She's afraid you might think it so."

His gray lips twitched into a smile. "That's Craig," he said, "a good boy, but oversolicitous . . ."

His voice trailed off, he added mildly—"you say things you don't mean when you are frightened."

"Val frightened me a little," said Abby. "I thought you were—worse. She said she wasn't allowed in for long this morning."

Her father moved his head on the pillows. He said, "My orders—confidentially. Valentine is a little over-protective, when one isn't quite up to scratch. She was badly shaken herself, but she has an exuberance, a vitality that can triumph over that, or anything. You, Abby, are extremely restless. Did anyone ever tell you that?"

"No," she said; "and I don't believe it, really."

He said carefully, "It was kind of Barry to come last night, sensible of him to keep you away until he knew exactly how things were. Also, he was a comfort to Valentine. You see, she doesn't like Craig."

Abby said uncomfortably, "Well, they aren't exactly each other's type."

"As good as a way to put it as any," He closed his eyes. He looked very old and tired. He said after a moment, "I have been thinking that perhaps it would be a good thing if Craig took a little holiday. He works hard, and faithfully. But he and Valentine get on each other's nerves, rather, and create a feeling of tension that disturbs me."

Oh, no, thought Abby, you mustn't do that! Just what she wants you to do! She felt a sharp irritation with Craig, who could permit himself to be maneuvered into this position. But her father went on, without opening his eyes:

"You don't approve of that? But in this instance I am thinking of myself. He opened his eyes and they were very cold and quiet. "I can hardly send my wife away," he reminded her. "It's quite possible that once Craig has had time to relax away from Fairton, he will see the situation in the right light. There are always compromises. Life's built on them!"

Abby asked cautiously, "But what situation could there be?" "Abby," said he: father, "you are not a child, you are a married woman. Do not be willfully—shall we say, innocent. Valentine is an attractive young woman. She has more sex appeal—which is a cliché but suffices—than almost any other woman I have ever known. Craig does not like her, and he was greatly distressed when we married. However, she attracts him. It is wholly natural if not estimable. He fights, as the attraction is abhorrent to him; also, it frightens him. So he goes on disliking her, all the more as he becomes more involved—emotionally." He hesitated, asked, "Is that the right word? I don't think so. Physically is better."

"For heaven's sake, Father," Abby began, "who has been—"

"No one has to tell me things of this sort," interrupted Wallace. "I sit on the sidelines and observe. I've been doing it a lifetime. I am not distressed by this, my dear. Valentine is capable of handling it and, moreover, she is not involved. She doesn't like poor Craig, and the reason is simple. She has no interest in him as a man and resents his quasi-filial position in the household. It's all quite logical. But I feel it would do no harm, and probably good, if Craig were to take a little trip. So I've arranged it. He's going to Sea Island for some golf and, I hope, an enjoyable visit. I told him this morning."

"Does—does he want to go?"

"On the contrary," He closed his eyes again. "But I have persuaded him. It will please Valentine, and by the time he returns the accident will have been forgotten except, of course, by Jay. However, the doctor assured me that he has the very best care, that the break was a clean one, and in the course of time he will be very nearly as good as new. Are you planning to see him?"

She said, "This afternoon."

"Good enough," said her father. "Craig will drive you over. He will then have someone to whom he can complain." He smiled again. Then he said, "I haven't been wholly truthful with you, Abby."

She looked at him, startled. "About what?"

He said, "It has little or nothing to do with the accident. My heart was not particularly good before that. Last night did not help it, perhaps, but it did it no lasting harm."

"Your heart," she said, "but I never—"

He said, "I shall be honest now. I have had for some time a cardiac condition. It is the sort of thing you can live with for a very long time if you take care of yourself. I have always done that, as you know: I am temperate, take no undue exercise. Last night's affair has not hurt me back as much as I shall recover. I have said nothing to Craig or Val, and of course, Barry. The doctor is a sensible man. He made his report, at my request, solely on the basis of the accident."

She asked, "Why are you telling me—now?"

"I am trying to make you understand something about your marriage, principally. He looked very tired now, but went on doggedly. "We won't go into the things you must have thought, and still think you were gone. I was lonelier than

I cared to admit, Valentine is very entertaining. I enjoy looking at her, and obeying the processes of her mind, even those she believes she hides from me. Ours was not a conventional marriage by any standard, a man in his middle seventies, a girl in her twenties. It has, I dare say, its revolting aspects . . . to you and," he added thoughtfully, "particularly to Barry." He raised his hand. "Don't interrupt me," he said, "please. Y-s, particularly to Barry. You would not understand that as you are not, my dear, a young and virile male. However, that is not the point of this dissertation. I married Valentine in order to be less lonely and to amuse myself. I am quite fond of her. I was aware that when we made our bargain I did her almost as much of an injustice as if the marriage had been conventional. But she understood the bargain, and also that in the nature of things, and the face of statistics, she was likely to be a widow longer than she had been—as the phrase goes—a wife." He paused to rest.

Abby said, "Bargain?"

He said, "Naturally. Did you think for a moment that I was interested in a relationship which never has been a factor, with me. Not even when I was a quarter of her age younger. Certainly, not now. I could not ask Valentine to live in my house, like I married her, conventions being what they are."

She said quickly, "Father, I'd rather you didn't—"

"Of course, you'd rather. But I wish you to know, Abby, Valentine married me for whatever I could give her. She has been, so far, content enough. She shows exactly how far she can go in her search for diversion if she is bored . . . as she often must be—and where—for the time being, that is, for as long as I live—she must stay. You aren't liking this, are you?"

"I'm hating it," said Abby, stifled. "It's . . ."

"Cold-blooded? Quite," he said. "You're tired, please don't talk any more."

Abby said, "If you wouldn't . . . you're tired, please don't talk any more."

He said, "Very well. But so far Val hasn't repented of her bargain. I think." He struggled to sit up and Abby rose and helped him, her arm about him, the pillows rearranged under deft hands.

"Thank you," he said. He added, "Will you believe that I married Valentine mainly to protect you, Abby?"

Mrs. Heddon knocked before she could answer, and came in. Wallace looked at her amiably. He said, "Mrs. Lambert was just leaving. Mrs. Heddon. I'll see her after she has been to the hospital to call on Mr. Morris. Abby, just a minute. You and Barry consider coming up for a time? If Barry cannot take a week or two off from his work, perhaps he would be willing to commute. Helpful as Valentine has been, she cannot take your place and Craig's, too. I'm a little pressed for time, with the book, now that Anderson is to publish it, and you could be very useful. You could," he added, anticipating her excuses, "put in your hospital hours here . . . Morton or Valentine would drive you over. Think about it. It would please me—very much."

RAPID CARD READING

READING THE distribution of an opponent's hand is sometimes a gradual process, as the length of first one suit and then another becomes known. There are rare occasions on which the distribution is completely delineated by the bidding and the opening lead, and sometimes the play of all concerned on a single trick can tell a lot of facts about the lineup. A player who does the possible counting on such occasions has a big advantage over one who neglects that phase of his task.

West's double is understandable, after hearing his partner's overcalls in two suits, especially since they were in "reverse" order, with his higher-ranking spades second. West, with five trumps bunched against his opponents and an ace to boot, looked forward to a nice penalty score. But, ph, how he was disappointed.

East led the 10 of his partner's clubs, the A winning and the 4 being sent back promptly. What West hoped from this is hard to imagine. He should have realized North had four trumps for his original heart bid and therefore East could not have any. North put a spade on it and, when East discarded a diamond, the club 8 won the trick. North now had from one trick a complete count of both clubs and hearts, as East surely would have ruffed if he could.

Girl Scout Leaders, Assistants Invested

Mrs. Young Is In Charge Of Group Meeting

Investiture services for new leaders and assistant leaders of the Girl Scouts were held Wednesday evening during an association meeting of the Circleville and Pickaway County Girl Scout Association at headquarters. Forty-two members of the organization were present with Mrs. Bernard V. Young, commissioner, presiding.

Mrs. Young spoke on the value of scouting and expressed her appreciation for the good work these new leaders have already done for their several troops. "It is a pleasure to see our growing organization," she said, "for although there are more than one million girls in scouting in the whole country, still only seven in one hundred girls are scouts. Without adequate leadership we can do little. It is extremely gratifying to find so many young women in Pickaway county willing and able to give so much of their time and services to these girls."

Mrs. William Radcliff as chairman of the troop development committee and Mrs. Enid Denham representing the members of the troop committees also welcomed the new leaders and assistant leaders. Girl Scout laws were given and the song entitled "Promise" was sung.

Those invested were Mrs. John Woods, leader, and Mrs. Bishop Hill, assistant leader of intermediate troop 2; Miss Wilma George, leader, and Miss Ann Moeller, assistant leader, of intermediate troop 3; Mrs. Edgar Hedges, leader, of Brownie troop 5; Mrs. Felix Dore, leader of Ashville intermediate troop 6; Mrs. George Speakman, leader of intermediate troop 7; Miss Eddie Bingham, leader, and Miss Ruth Workman, assistant, for intermediate troop 9; Mrs. John Heiskell, leader of Brownie troop 10; and Miss Bernadine Gills, leader of intermediate troop 11. Mrs. Robert Brehmer Jr., and Miss Marjorie Oyer, leader, and assistant leader of Senior Scout troop 8 have still to be invested with their offices.

Preceding the investiture service there was a brief business meeting during which time Mrs. Young announced that the Girl Scout calendars are ready for sale by scouts and urged troop committees assist in this money making project. Miss Ruth Stout announced that reservations would close Wednesday for the district conference at Cincinnati, November 6 and 7, a feature of which is a banquet with a Girl Scout speaker from the UNRRA team.

Mrs. Young introduced the new program chairman, Miss Margaret Rooney, to the group.

Mrs. Mack Noggle, chairman of the camp committee, reported that intermediate scouts, Miss Nancy Eshelman and Miss Jean Heine, had acted as representatives to Ohio History Day at Logan Elm on Sunday and that the completion of the Girl Scout lodge at Gold Cliff had been announced at that gathering. Many members of Chillicothe, Columbus and Lancaster have seen the new camp and praised it highly. She also said that all the troops are now planning to go troop camping on weekends in October and November and are looking forward to the new experience with a great deal of anticipation and pleasure.

Circleville's Tigers Hosts To Chillicothe Tigers Friday Night

ROSS COUNTIANS BIG FAVORITES IN GAME HERE

Overflow Crowd To Watch Fifth Game Of Season On CHS Field

Circleville high school Tigers definitely will be the underdogs Friday night when they play host to the Chillicothe high school Cavaliers on CHS football field.

Outweighing the Tigers by a large margin, representing a school of nearly 1,000 students and a town three times as big as Circleville, the Cavaliers and their followers are expecting an easy victory here. They have run wild against Jackson and Portsmouth East, edged out Washington C. H. and bowed to a good Ironton team to date.

Starting the season with two lettermen and a new coaching staff which is headed by Homer Edgington, formerly of Ohio State, the Cavaliers have made good progress and plan to add another victory here this week.

Last year was the first time the two teams have played for a long time. The Tigers went to Chillicothe with Leonard Hill and Jack Hennis on the injured list and took a defeat. They made a good showing but could not get the necessary points.

Again this year injuries have hurt the Tiger chances. They have lost "Skeet" Smallwood, quarterback, Charles Thomas, fullback, Rod Heine, left half, and Jack Stout, utility back. Friday Leon Sims will be 20 and ineligible.

But there will be a football game Friday night and there may be a lot of surprises. Coach Steve Brudzinski will start an inexperienced backfield which includes a freshman and two sophomores but they will be scrapping. If injuries had not piled up there might have been some special tricks for this game but he will have to depend on the fight of his charges to make up for any deficiency in experience.

Steve is not discouraged and promises fans his boys will put up a fight, even if they lose. The young coach is hoping the Cavaliers will have more trouble than they are expecting.

An overflow crowd is anticipated. A large delegation from Chillicothe will be on hand to back the Cavaliers, plus a "Dad's Night" throng from Circleville and vicinity.

There will be two bands on the field at halftime. Circleville's own under the capable direction of C. F. Zaenglein, and the big Chillicothe band with Dick Whittington in charge. Dads of football players on the Tiger squad will be honored at the half.

Gates will open at 6:30 p. m. with game time set for 8 p. m. Adult tickets are on sale downtown at Griffith and Martin, Gallaher and Hanley's and student tickets at the high school. Efforts are being made to get extra bleachers for the game. Booster Club members will assist in handling the crowd by taking tickets and ushering.

With identical records, both teams will be trying their best to keep their good marks and blot the other's performance. The weatherman, after gloomy Wednesday and Thursday predictions, promises fair and cool weather Friday.

The Westerville game attracted the largest crowd ever to see a game at the local field, but a new record is expected Friday night.

School officials advise local fans to get their tickets in advance and be at the field early.

BLEACHER FAN SLEEPS THROUGH SERIES CONTEST

BOSTON, Oct. 10—Grover Cleveland Gilmore was ready to take his stand again today in the line in front of the bleacher gate for the fourth World Series game at Fenway park and he hoped that he would do a little better by himself.

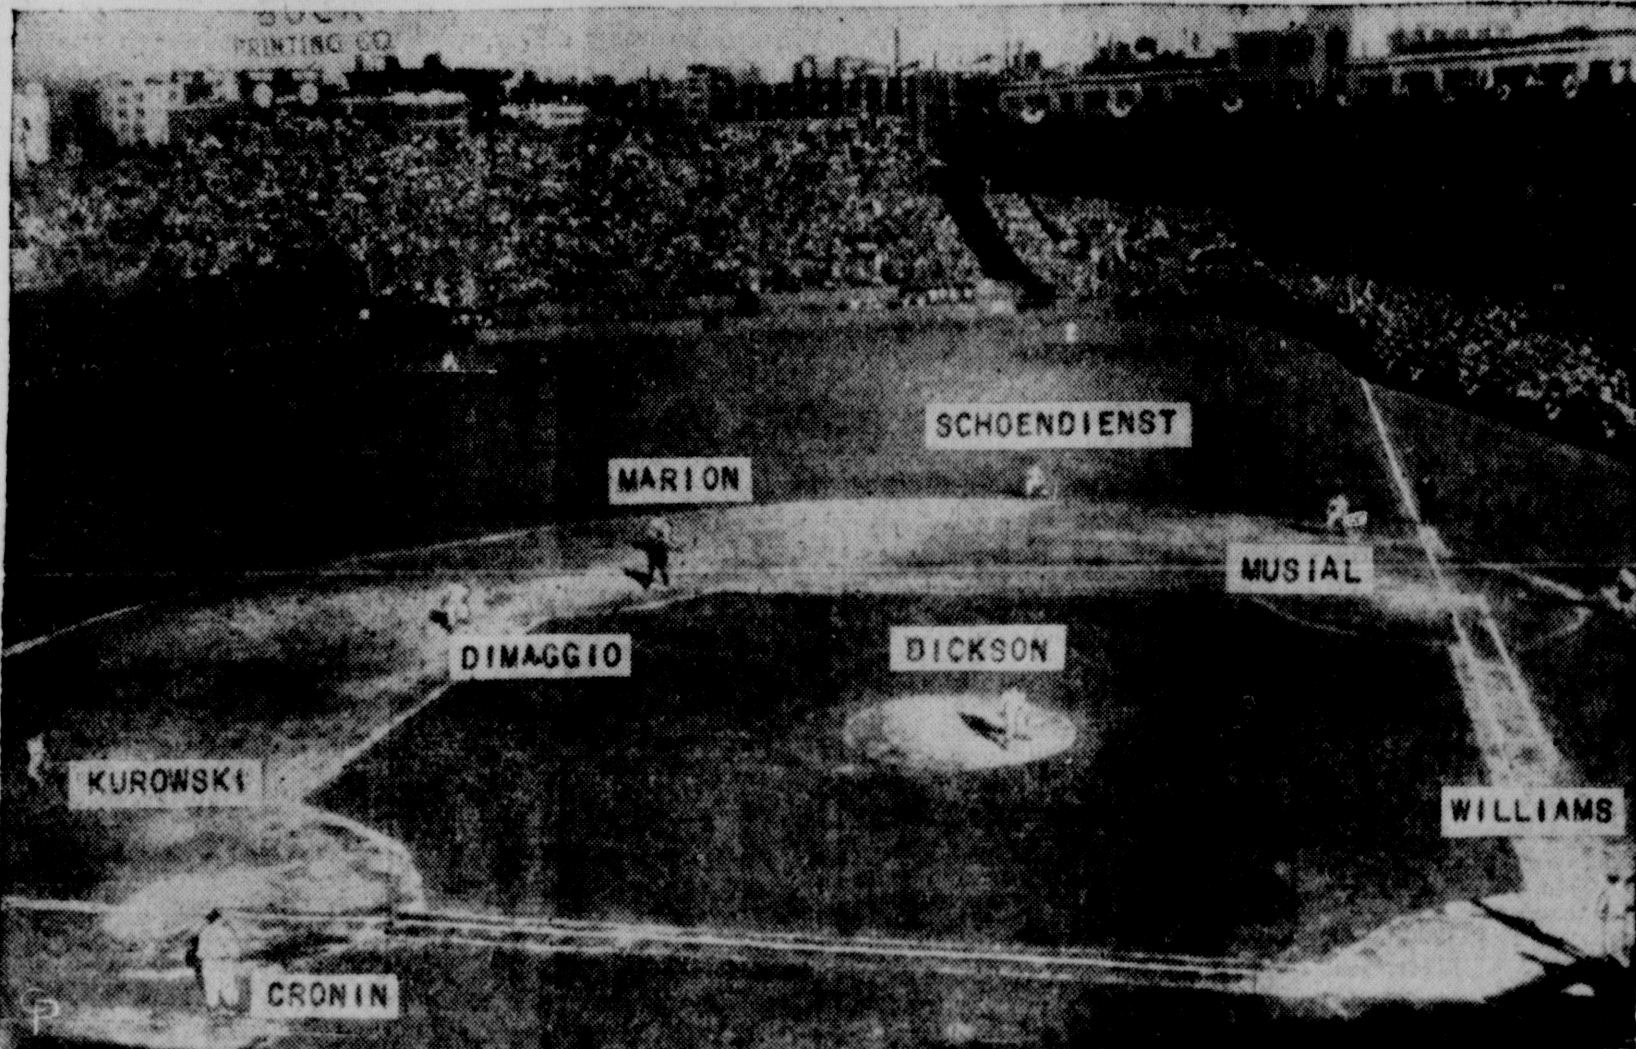

Gilmore, who is from Raleigh, N. C., was around yesterday but he didn't see the Red Sox beat the Cardinals, 4 to 0.

When that happened, he was fast asleep.

Gilmore was the first man in line to buy a ticket for a bleacher seat to see yesterday's game of the World Series, but to attain that honored position he had to stand there exactly 34 hours and 12 minutes through sunshine, darkness and sunshine again.

Came the game and Gilmore had a choice seat as bleacher seats go. But he stayed awake just long enough to see Rudy York's first

WHEN Ted Williams finally bunted one down third base in the third inning of the first series game in Boston the Cardinals were in the "Williams shift" and Ted beat out the hit for a single. In the fifth the Cards changed the shift a bit, Kurovski playing his regular position at third and Marion in back of second. The second Williams shift is pictured. Dom DiMaggio is on second base and Manager Joe Cronin of the Sox in the coach's box. Williams struck out on this play.

MANAGER CRONIN SAYS WILLIAMS NOT FOR SALE

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Talk of trade sending Ted Williams away from the Boston Red Sox subsided today, although it did not entirely disappear, after Red Sox manager Joe Cronin said Williams "assuredly" would be with Boston in 1947.

"Williams is not for sale," Cronin said, answering reports that the Yankees were offering Joe DiMaggio, Aaron Robinson and Bill Johnson and that Detroit offered Hal Newhouse and Dick Wakefield. Williams himself had said he thought he might be sold.

DYER GAMBLES WITH MUNGER IN FOURTH GAME

Big Righthander Faces Sox As Cards Try To Get Back In Series

BY LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Eddie Dyer, who wasn't in a very favorable position to take chances, took a long shot gamble today in an effort to get his St. Louis Cardinals even with the Boston Red Sox in the 1946 World Series.

Trailing two games to one, the pilot of the National League champions named George (Red) Munger, a right hander, to pitch against Ted Hughson and the Red Sox in the fourth game and kept Howie Pollet, his star southpaw who has had more rest than he is accustomed to, on the bench.

Munger has been a question mark since he was mustered out of service in August and, 10 days later, began pitching for the Cardinals in their successful pennant campaign. Dyer started him in some key games and for the most part found him wanting.

Perhaps he reasoned that even if his gamble today didn't pan out—and the chances he has taken in the series thus far haven't made him look very good—Pollet was almost a sure thing to beat the Sox in the fifth game. But most baseball men were wondering why he wasn't going with Pollet today inasmuch as the willow left-hander has had three days rest since he missed, by one pitch, winning the opening game at Sportsman's Park Sunday.

Rudy York was the hero of yesterday's 4 to 0 victory which gave the Red Sox their edge in this best four out of seven series. He had to share honors with Dave (no longer Boo) Ferriss. Ferriss shut out the Cards on six hits and never was in trouble after the Cherokee Indian first baseman blasted a 3-and-2 pitch into the left field screen for a three-run homer in the first inning.

That blow turned out to be a bad gamble for Dyer, for he had ordered losing pitcher Murry Dickson to pass Ted Williams, one of the greatest hitters in baseball history, with a man on second base and two out.

Looking back, the so-called baseball experts were wondering why he did that, particularly after York had hurt him in that first game while the southpaw aces of the Cards—Pollet and Brecheen—suffered no damage from Williams' vaunted bat.

Unlike Dyer, Cronin was doing no pitching gambling. He was coming right back with Hughson, one of his aces. And win or lose, tomorrow it will be Mickey Harris, who lost to Brecheen.

Cronin wasn't looking beyond the fifth game, for he figured his club could wind up the series in the grounds where they have been poison to their opposition all season. The Sox have lost only 17 out of the 78 games they have played here this year. Seventy-seven of them were during the regular season. The 76th was yesterday. And that 78th also showed that Fer-

RESEARCH MEN HUNTING CURES FOR ELM ENEMY

Two Deadly Diseases Are Being Fought By U. S. Scientists

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—An agriculture department official said today that research men have redoubled efforts to find cures for two deadly diseases which have destroyed millions of the nation's choicest elm trees.

Avery S. Hoyt, assistant chief of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, said new urgency had been given the search by the fact that the two scourges have begun to overlap for the first time in the Ohio river valley.

Most familiar of the two is Dutch elm disease. This first was discovered in the U. S. in 1920 after being brought in from Holland. Less widely known but equally deadly to elm trees is a native disease known as phloem necrosis.

Although its figures are not up to date, the bureau said Dutch elm disease alone had claimed more than 6,000,000 trees through December, 1944. Avery said the effects of phloem necrosis are just as deadly.

"Where the two diseases are overlapping, Dutch elm disease has spread at an alarming rate even though phloem necrosis alone had been causing heavy losses," Hoyt said. "Even greater losses are expected if a cure is not found."

He said the chief trouble centers right now are Columbus, O., and Kansas City although the infection is nearly as bad many other places. In Columbus, the state house yard has been almost completely stripped of its historic elms.

Dutch elm disease, which is widespread in Europe, was traced in this country to a shipment of timber sent to the United States from Holland for manufacturing purposes. It first made its appearance in Ohio.

Scientists discovered the disease had been spread by infected bark beetles in the Dutch elms. When the sun warmed them, the beetles came out of hiding and rapidly spread the infection to American elms. From then on, it mushroomed rapidly.

Phloem necrosis is more mysterious. Experts believe it runs in cycles since old trees are affected most. They think it may spring up, run its course and then die out until there is a new crop of older elms.

It has been spreading rapidly along the Ohio river and its tributaries and now is reaching up along the Missouri to a little beyond the southern boundary of Iowa.

The fact that the two diseases have overlapped has complicated the problem of control. Trees have been developed which are resistant to either one of the infections. Scientists now are trying to find types resistant to both.

Hoyt said the research work was being carried on at the department's central research station at Beltsville, Md., as well as at Columbus and Marietta, O., Morristown, N. J., and Princeton, N. J.

BARBERS CLAIM STUDENTS GIVE THEM TRIMMING

LA FAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 10—Union barbers complained today that they were being trimmed by Purdue university students on strike against the high price of haircuts.

The students, the barbers said, are removing patrons from their shops by force and preventing other customers from entering. The barbers, who belong to a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, estimate their collective business has been trimmed by 60 per cent.

A campaign designed to reduce the cost of haircuts from $1 to 75 cents started several days ago when men students vowed not to have their hair cut until the demand was met.

Now, the barbers complain, a virtual boycott has been set up. They complained to Indiana state federation of labor leaders in Indianapolis, charging that the student group used tactics "like the Nazi youth movements."

"Something must be done," representatives of barbers local 86 and guild 5 of West Lafayette advised Carl H. Mullen, president of the state AFL.

AFL officials said they were studying laws and conferring with federal and state authorities. They said the students might be violating labor laws.

Meanwhile, the leaders of the "six-bit haircut" movement, said they had more than 2,500 names on petitions demanding that dollar haircuts be abolished.

WAR VET PERAK IS NEW RIVAL OF DONALD DUCK

War-time Gremlin Now Set For Appearances On Movie Palaces

By GEORGE PIPAL
United Press Staff Correspondent
PRAGUE, Oct. 10.—Donald Duck has a new rival. Perak is the name, and he's a war veteran.
Perak was the resourceful gremlin of the German occupation. He worked as a dusky chimney-sweep by day, but in the dark of night he made life miserable for the Gestapo in Czechoslovakia. Buildings and long distances were minor obstacles to Perak those days. He simply rose above them—like Superman without the fancy suit.
Whatever misfortune befell the Germans in Prague, Perak usually got the credit. If some naughty Nazi officer had his monocle punctured by a bullet, Perak was responsible; whenever a Volkswagen broke down, Perak was perched on the carburetor.
Now 120 Czech artists, editors, technicians and photographers are busy converting the wartime Perak into a peacetime celluloid immortal. Like many another GI, Perak has had to make what are termed adjustments, but he's coming along fine.
In fact, Perak may even find his way to the United States if the reports from Hollywood are true. These reports say that Donald Duck's screen appearances may have to be curtailed because of rising production costs.
Perak and other Czech-made cartoons are handled by the division for state production of painted films, a branch of the nationalized Czech film industry. The subsidiary is only a year old, but al-

Rescue Thwarted

REGINALD "RAY" GOETCHIUS, 41, a professional parachute jumper of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was subjected to rifle fire when his plane passed over the western China site, where an American pilot and 31 others are reported held by Lolo natives. Goetchius' attempt to rescue the flyers, who crashed in the fierce tribe's territory Sept. 20, was thwarted. (International) ready Czech cartoons have appeared in Holland, and contracts are expected with France and Denmark.

Foreign critics viewed some of the cartoons recently at Marianske Lazne. Sometimes the movements appeared wooden and jerky, but there were numerous examples of artistic originality. Music usually provides the framework for the film.

FAMILY PARTY AT HIRAM
HIRAM, O.—The Kimball family of Willoughby, O., is well represented at Hiram College. All four sons of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kimball have enrolled. Maynard, 26; Edward, 23; and Lawrence, 22, are entering school from the army, coast guard, and marines, respectively. 18-year-old Daniel was too young for war service.

STOUTSVILLE SCHOOL NEWS

The Junior class had a fine ending for the magazine contest which it sponsored. Norman Hill was high salesman for the Crowell-Colliers Company, bringing into his class a total of $37. For his untiring efforts, a prize was awarded him. Second high salesman was Jack Hamp with a total of $19.50; Treva Haynes was third in line with a total of $19. Patsy Huddle was high salesman for the Curtis Publishing company with a total of $13. For her work in the campaign, she was presented a copy of "Post's Stories" from 1942-45. It is a collection of the Saturday Evening Post's finest stories.

The school is ready to exhibit its work at the Fairfield county fair. For the past several weeks the teachers and students have been working on material to complete Stoutsville's display which will be found this year in Booth E in the North Wing of the Art Hall.

The Junior class sponsored a skating party Wednesday evening, Sept. 25 at the Laurel Valley Roller Rink. A nice crowd was in attendance. Proceeds are to go for putting on the annual Junior-Senior banquet.

Clearcreek School Club met Monday, Sept. 23 at 8 o'clock and presented the following program: invocation - Rev. Harrison; secretary's report by Mrs. Marvin Rife; treasurer's report by Mrs. Starling Knecht; business session conducted by Alton Noggle; musical numbers by the Larrison family; talk by Dr. Coleman from the county health commission; and remarks by Wendell K. Love, school superintendent who introduced his staff of teachers to the group.

Girls at Stoutsville have organized their team last week. They are hoping to make a good showing with their first game of the season with Thurston. A pre-vious game was scheduled with Amanda, but due to reasons beyond our control, the game had to be postponed.

Due to the fact that the six-weeks period ends during Fair week when we will be out of school on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the teachers are giving their examinations this week in order to get grades out on scheduled time.
Lois Friessner Kane, graduate of '46, spent Wednesday visiting with former classmates and teacher at Clearcreek township high school.
Miss Huysen will spend the weekend with Miss Lois Fisher of Reading, Ohio. Miss Fisher formerly taught primary grades in the Stoutsville school.

Grass is on the Move

Out of the sandhills of Nebraska, up from the Chama country of New Mexico . . . all the way from the state of Washington to Texas, there's a flood of livestock on the move. Feeder cattle and lambs raised in the great grass-growing regions of the United States are flowing into the feed lots of the nation. This movement reaches its peak each October, and its significance is of great economic importance to all of us in the livestock-meat industry.
These millions of head of feeder cattle and lambs are nothing more than grass turned into meat. True, these feeders will require a certain amount of grain to finish them as satisfactory meat animals. That's why they go into the feed lots. But were it not for these grazing animals, 779,000,000 acres of the land area of the United States would produce little, if any, human food. In other words, 41% of the total land of our nation consists of grass land which cannot be used for producing other foods and feeds. Also taking into consideration the plowable land used to produce pasture, hay and other forage crops, approximately half of our land would produce no food of human value, were it not for livestock.
Of the total feeds consumed by beef cattle, 78.7% is grass, hay and dry roughages. With lambs, it is 95.6%. These are official figures of the United States Department of Agriculture. Thus, the grain that goes into feeder cattle and lamb rations is but a relatively small part of the feed that makes our meat. A minimum of corn is needed to bring feeder steers from 700 to 1,000 pounds when the principal part of the ration is made up of fodder, corn silage, other available roughages and some concentrates.

In addition to utilizing grass which otherwise would be wasted, the production of livestock furnishes the nation with its finest nutritional food—meat. In the great movement of meat from the Western range to the kitchen range, the stop-over in the feed lots increases the amount of meat. It also levels out the fall flood of livestock into a more even year-round marketing. Thus seasonal price fluctuations are not so marked. In the production of livestock, the majority of America's 6,000,000 farmers and ranchers find the chief means of marketing their grass and other home-grown feeds.

MANY ACCIDENTS CAN BE PREVENTED

Every three minutes there is a farm or ranch accident. Unless something is done, 19,500 people may be killed in such accidents this year. Another 1,800,000 may be injured. We at Swift & Company want to help cut down this accident toll. That's why we print the pictures and the questions which follow. Little chances not taken, little repairs made, can prevent big accidents. Do you take the chances shown below? Check yourself.

Do you have a strongly built bull pen? Do you lead the bull around on a rope because you do not have a bull-staff? Do you approach horses from behind without speaking and patting their rumps to warn them? Then watch yourself . . . one out of four fatal farm accidents occurs in handling livestock.

☐ I never handle animals carelessly ☐ I approach animals without warning

Do you leave safety shields off power shafts, gears and chains? Wear loose-fitting clothing that may catch in machinery? Operate the tractor on dangerous inclines or banks? Mishandled machinery and equipment are involved in nearly one out of three fatal farm accidents.

☐ I am never careless around machinery ☐ I sometimes take chances with machinery

TEAMWORK

While we were preparing the "Grass is on the Move" article for this page, a cattleman friend from one of the western range states called to see me. I told him about the article. "It points out," I said, "that lots of food for humans is produced from areas that otherwise would be waste land if it were not for meat animals." He said, "That's good! There are always misguided people who complain that it's a waste to feed corn and other grains to livestock. They say people ought to eat the grain, instead of turning it into meat. They forget that most of that meat is made of grass, hay and other roughage that people can't eat."
"Another thing too many people forget," he went on, "is the important job you meat packers do in getting meat to the people who want it. I understand that meat travels an average of more than 1,000 miles from producers to consumers. That must be so because we fellows west of the Mississippi raise two-thirds of the livestock. But two-thirds of the meat is eaten east of the Mississippi, where most of the people live. In a way, we who raise and finish the animals are like manufacturers. And you are our sales and distributing departments. Believe me, we need an organization that covers the nation to get our product into every market in this big country. It seems to me that you and we are in this business together, and neither could get along without the other."
It seems to me that he's right! F.M. Simpson, Agricultural Research Department

SELECTING JUNIOR CLUB STEERS

by W. H. Peters
University of Minnesota
Every boy and girl who enters a junior feeding contest would like to secure a feeder steer good enough to become a champion. In selecting calves with this high aim in mind, the "satisfactory prospect" must be a purebred or high-grade of one of the recognized beef breeds, Short-horn, Hereford, or Angus.
The calf or yearling steer in thin condition must appear short in legs in proportion to his depth of body, or to put it the other way around, he must appear deep in body in proportion to his length of legs. He must then appear to be wide in his body and thickly covered with muscle, especially over the loin and down through the thighs.
The feeder calf should have a short neck and a short, broad head. He should appear moderately fine or small in the legs and head as an indication that he will fatten smoothly and show quality when fat. Large, coarse-appearing calves and small over-refined ones seldom develop into winners. Calves that appear nervous and easily excited or frightened should be avoided as they are likely to not do well and to be hard to train to lead.

Martha Logan's Recipe for DEEP DISH MEAT PIE

Yield: 6 Servings

2 cups diced cooked meat (beef and pork)
Salt, Pepper
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons lard

2 medium sized onions
1 cup cooked diced potatoes
1 cup cooked peas
1 cup cooked sliced carrots

DISCUT TOPPING

1/4 cup lard
2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder

Season meat. Add vegetables and hot water to cover. Pour into a deep, wide casserole or baking dish. Meat. Make drop biscuits by cutting fat into flour sifted with baking powder and salt. Add enough milk to make a very soft dough. Drop by tablespoons on top of the meat mixture. Bake in a hot oven (425°F) about 20 minutes or until the biscuits are well browned.

Control swine parasites and make more profit. Even fall pigs may be infested with internal parasites. Strict sanitation is the key to control. The following practices have been found effective: clean the farrowing pens and scrub with boiling lye water. Wash the sow's sides and belly with soapy water before farrowing. If the pigs have been farrowed in permanent houses, haul them to clean pasture. Keep the pigs on pasture until bad fall weather sets in.

OUR CITY COUSIN

City Cousin, dressed up slick, Wonders, "Where is farming's kick?" He'll find out—mighty quick.

Marketing Dairy and Poultry Products. The same nationwide facilities which are used to distribute meat are ideal for the distribution of dairy and poultry products. All these products are perishable and require refrigeration. Many consumers buy their butter, cheese, eggs, poultry and meats from the same store. So, as you can see, it is more economical to have one Swift & Company salesman who sells 16 or more products than 16 salesmen each selling one product. Further, costs are reduced by having the same trucks deliver these products at the same time to the same dealer.
By preparing, handling and selling dairy and poultry products, as well as meat, distribution costs are reduced on all these foods. Our objective is to provide wider outlets for the products of America's farms and ranches. We have a booklet entitled "Dairy and Poultry Products" which we will gladly send you. Just write to Swift & Company, Department A-3, Chicago 9, Illinois.

MAD COSTELLO

Lou Costello hears music every time he does something wrong, and fears that he is losing his mind, in the comedy broadcast Thursday, at 10 p. m. Skinnay Ennis sings "I Don't Know Why I Love You Like I Do," probably reflecting Abbott's feelings when he discovers that Costello has $25 in the bank. Marilyn Maxwell's song is "South America, Take It Away."
